The Narrow Road to Oku is one of the classic works of Japanese literature, and Basho is one of the masters of the haiku poetry form. Although haiku is known in the West primarily for its "5-7-5" pattern of syllables, it is considerably more nuanced and rule-bound than this (ironically, however, the 5-7-5 "rule" is occasionally broken).

When he composed The Narrow Road to the Deep North, he was an ardent student of Zen Buddhism, setting off on a series of travels designed to strip away the trappings of the material world and bring spiritual enlightenment. He wrote of the seasons changing, of the smells of the rain, the brightness of the moon, and beauty of the waterfall, through which he sense mysteries of the universe.
